1. Circle the one you read:

Pugin, An Apology (1843)

Walter, "Lectures" (1841-53)

2. For each question, write an answer in your own words, then provide support from the original document.

What is the role of history in architectural design?

Is it a good or bad thing that there is so much for architects to study and make use of?

What historical sources are good ones, and why is that the case?

What does your architect think about modern inventions in architecture?

Does your architect think that a nation's architecture should be unique?

3. Do a quick internet search to see a portfolio of each architect's work. Having seen that, and hopefully scanning the other theory excerpt, do you think they would get along?
